House-breakers in Gettysburg.

About 2 o'clock on Sunday morning the room of James McAllister, a deaf midget of this place, at the City Hotel, was broken open while he was asleep.

It seems that the lock had been previously tampered with by drawing the screws and putting in wooden plugs instead.

The amount of booty secured was $300 in cash and $10 in checks. A purse of $150 in gold, which was kept at another place, was not taken. There is no clue to the party or parties.

On Wednesday night an attempt was made to break into Prentiss Myers' jewelry-store. William Hamill, an apprentice with Mr. Myers, was in the back part of the store. He heard a noise in the saler, and suddenly one of the shutters was opened. Looking out of the window Hamill saw a man in the alley in the rear of the store. He gave the alarm, but the culprit escaped. Late the same night some one tried to break into the Eagle Hotel, office, but was scared off by the night watchman.

A RAILROAD HURST.

Hugh M. McNaughey, an engineer on the W. M. R. R., formerly of this place, was severely injured in Hanover on Saturday. At the time of the accident he was pushing the air pump of his locomotive as it was standing upon the switch that came into the turn-table. Not knowing McNaughey's position, Mr. Angel started to run the engine upon the turn-table and Mr. McNaughey was caught between the end of the engine and the sand house. When the engine was stopped, it was found that the man was terribly injured about the head, having a deep gash about the right eye and the left ear, and left side of his skull badly bruised. His right arm, near the wrist, was badly lacerated.

BUNDER NEEDLE THROUGH HIS ARM.

Abram Altland, tenant of the Melchizedek farm, near East Berlin, met with a very painful accident while engaged in cutting grain recently. It seems that while the machine was in motion Mr. Altland attempted to remove some tangled grain from the top of the machine, and in so doing caught his hand in the wheel, causing the machine to stop. The hand entered the hub of the wheel, coming out at the hand, tearing the flesh almost to the bone, making a very painful and ugly looking wound.

House-breakers in Gettysburg.

About 2 o'clock on Sunday morning the room of James McAllister, a deaf midget of this place, at the City Hotel, was broken open while he was asleep.

It seems that the lock had been previously tampered with by drawing the screws and putting in wooden plugs instead.

The amount of booty secured was $300 in cash and $10 in checks. A purse of $150 in gold, which was kept at another place, was not taken. There is no clue to the party or parties.

On Wednesday night an attempt was made to break into Prentiss Myers' jewelry-store. William Hamill, an apprentice with Mr. Myers, was in the back part of the store. He heard a noise in the saler, and suddenly one of the shutters was opened. Looking out of the window Hamill saw a man in the alley in the rear of the store. He gave the alarm, but the culprit escaped. Late the same night some one tried to break into the Eagle Hotel, office, but was scared off by the night watchman.

A RAILROAD HURST.

Hugh M. McNaughey, an engineer on the W. M. R. R., formerly of this place, was severely injured in Hanover on Saturday. At the time of the accident he was pushing the air pump of his locomotive as it was standing upon the switch that came into the turn-table. Not knowing McNaughey's position, Mr. Angel started to run the engine upon the turn-table and Mr. McNaughey was caught between the end of the engine and the sand house. When the engine was stopped, it was found that the man was terribly injured about the head, having a deep gash about the right eye and the left ear, and left side of his skull badly bruised. His right arm, near the wrist, was badly lacerated.

BUNDER NEEDLE THROUGH HIS ARM.

Abram Altland, tenant of the Melchizedek farm, near East Berlin, met with a very painful accident while engaged in cutting grain recently. It seems that while the machine was in motion Mr. Altland attempted to remove some tangled grain from the top of the machine, and in so doing caught his hand in the wheel, causing the machine to stop. The hand entered the hub of the wheel, coming out at the hand, tearing the flesh almost to the bone, making a very painful and ugly looking wound.

CRIMSON CLOVER.

FARMERS OF DELAWARE GROW THIS CLOVER BETTER FOR ITS SEED AND FOR FLOWERING UNDER THE SUN. IT'S VIRTUE AS A CULTIVATOR.

JOHNSON & JOHNSON,
Manufacturing Chemists, New York.

July 7, 1869.

One of the most valuable plants of recent introduction into this country is crimson, or scarlet clover. It grows on land upon which red clover cannot be made a profitable crop and it occupies the land, like rye, at a season of the year when the land is not in use. Although crimson clover has been known in the United States, and especially in the South, for about 15 years, yet it is only five or six years ago that it began to receive attention as a valuable crop for renewing the nitrogen of the soil, Delaware giving it more prominence than any other State; in fact, the best seed comes from Delaware, and the farmers of that State grow it, almost both for its seed and for sowing under. New Jersey also grows large crops and it is used as hay, while in many sections of Young's Ionia crimson clover is sown down every fall to be turned under for corn in the spring. In Pennsylvania, however, where red clover can be grown on every farm, the crimson variety will not supersede it, but there is a place on the farm for crimson clover even when red clover is a leading crop.

SEEDLED IN AUGUST.

Crimson clover is sown down in August. It may be sown in September, but experiments show that it gives better results if the seed is plowed in before August, as then it has more time to become established before winter. It is a hardy plant, never winter-killed, and springs up as early as rye, coming into blossom two or three weeks before red clover. When in blossom the field is a perfect mass of cluster flowers, and one of the most beautiful sights to be seen. Like red clover, it derives nitrogen from the air, through the agency of its roots, which take up the ammonia and nitric acid brought down by the rains, and it is claimed also that its leaves have the property of deriving the free nitrogen from the atmosphere, which is added to the soil when the crop is plowed under. It is this characteristic, peculiar to all the leguminous plants, which makes it so valuable, as it will grow and thrive on sandy soils or land upon which red clover will not thrive.

CATCH CROPS.

The proper way to grow the crimson clover is to seed it on a piece of land ready prepared for that purpose, yet some farmers find it profitable to grow it as a "catch crop," that is, after the corn has received its last working the crimson clover seed is broadcast over the corn-field, no harrowing being required, as it is seldom that the seed fails to germinate if given any chance at all, and it is also sown on wheat and oats stubble land that has been scratched over with a harrow; but it is better to plow such lands and seed the clover properly. On every vacant place the seed may be sown, as it will at least do no harm to the land, to have at least a half crop, for every pound of the clover that can be turned under in the spring is a gain of nitrogen and reduces the amount that would otherwise be expended for fertilizer. Crimson clover is an annual, and does not have to occupy the ground two years, like red clover, and as it may be sown in August and plowed under in the spring in time to supply nitrogen for corn, or be used as an early hay crop, it should not be missing from the farm rotation. Last year the drought late in the fall was a serious drawback, but such droughts are unusual, as it will grow on any land that will produce rye, it should be made to cover every available space.

PREVENTING THE INVASION OF THE ARMY WORM.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
Office of State Zoologist,
Harrisburg, Pa., July 16, 1869.

Inasmuch as numerous reports have within the last few days reached this Department from various sections of the State asking information, as to the best method of dealing with the army worm, entomologically known as Lacraea minima, the following suggestions are offered as a means that may be used in combating this pest.

The fully developed worm is a little over an inch long, of a gray or dingy black color with black stripes and narrow rows of white on back, and the under surface is of a more or less greenish color; the head is smooth and yellowish, with two black lines running from top to mouth. It has sixteen legs, and those from the middle of the body are each marked with a shining black or blackish band.

The worms when disturbed curl themselves up like "cat-worms," and drop to the ground. Those that complete their growth in about one month, at the end of which period they burrow into the ground and eat each other, changing to a brown pupa, from which in two or three weeks the moth emerges. The female moth is said to lay about 750 minute and white eggs, and these hatch in from eight to ten days.

TO PREVENT THEIR SPREAD.

The best authorities recommend the sowing of a wide swath around the vineyard, field, etc., to plow a deep furrow with straight side toward the part to be protected, at intervals of a few feet make holes with a crow-bar, or dig small pits into which the worms entangled in the ditch will fall.

Where the number of worms is very great and the ditch becomes partially filled, plow a second furrow throwing the earth over into the first furrow, thus covering up the worms and providing a second line of defense.

Southern authorities recommend the use of kerosene sprinkled over the worms entrapped in the ditch and thereby destroy them; others use a slight covering of straw which is set on fire, and accomplish the same result.
